Minor Academic Events in line of NEP

In the line and spirit of upcoming NEP and its emphasis on introduction and popularization of philosophy in Schools, Intermediary stages, UG and PG, ICPR needs to introduce some of the learner-centered on interesting, low budgeted minor programmes that can be adopted in UG and PG levels in colleges and universities with more involvement of participants. It will also introduce the test of philosophy to the new learners. Keeping this in view, the following enrichment and outreach programmes are proposed for review and adoption as new schemes of programmes by ICPR by allocating a certain amount towards this. The details are as following.

A. Enrichment Programmes for PG and upper levels:

1. Thematic Philosophical Exercise.

Under this programme, a theme from philosophical, non-philosophical text or a simple story or part of story will be given to the selected participants of the PG and up to the level of research in philosophy. The participants will be given some instruction as what type of exercises will be made on the theme, so that they would come prepared. After four days or a week or so, the participants will be called to the venue and the exercises will be done.

As for example of one type of exercise, they will be asked to answer questions on philosophical aspects, like, linguistic, epistemic, logical, moral / ethical / analytical and metaphysical ones, as concealed in the theme of the story/literature. It may be followed up with looking at the common, uncommon and maximum appropriate points and awards may be distributed accordingly.
